Sofà Gran Khan

Francesco Binfaré

DESCRIPTION

A loose sheet of raw-edge leather is tossed on top of Gran Khan, the sofa that suggests the rugged image of bedding in Mongolian yurts.

Inspired by the tradition of nomadic peoples who live “under the crescent moon.”

The covering is made with natural skins and very soft, heavy fabrics, to enhance the comfortable special padding. A large leather cloak formed by two skins of remarkable thickness (4 mm) with raw edges, stitched at the center and invisibly fastened to the sofa by means of two giant aluminium clasps.
