Superquadra Bench

Marcio Kogan / Studio Mk27

DESCRIPTION

Designed by Brazilian architect Marcio Kogan / studio mk27, the Superquadra furniture line takes its name from the pilot town planning design by Lúcio Costa with Oscar Niemeyer, conceived in 1956 for a residential neighborhood of Brasília and presented as a series of basic prefab houses. The square volumes of the famous buildings suspended on agile pilotis are revamped to characterize sideboards, benches, coffee tables, console table and tables of the Superquadra family.

The architectural imprint that characterizes the airy volumes of the Superquadra storage units, translates into the graphic the minimalism of the Superquadra line of coffee tables, benches and console tables. The elements rest on a base with protruding legs, in aluminium with a polished Brandy varnished finish, giving the products an ultra-lightweight look. The discreet design is animated by a mix of fine quality materials – marble, wood, fabric and leather – used for the shelves and seats, and interpreted in a modern, textured style. With Superquadra, Marcio Kogan / studio mk27 reaffirms the identity of a style with its roots in the 1950s, sporting a mix of characteristics balanced between the past and the present.
